Surprise Money is still a big concern of students

By GARY HOUGHENS

Financial success doesn't mean that much to Tisha Powell.

The Caneyville freshman said she chose a major in elementary education because she wanted "the chance to make a difference."

"Money isn't why I came to college."

But her lack of interest in making money is a rarity among the nation's freshmen, according to the results of a recent national survey of 200,000 first-year students at 403 U.S. colleges and universities.

Seventy-five percent of respondents to the survey, conducted by the University of California at Los Angeles, said "being well-off financially" was an essential objective in their lives.

Powell said she's not surprised that college students are "money hungry."

"It's the American way," she said.

Despite these figures, record numbers of students also said they were interested in influencing social values and protecting the environment.

Eighty-six percent of the students felt that the government wasn't doing enough to protect the environment. Forty-four percent said influencing social values was important to them, and 26 percent

Senior hunk chosen best man, again

By ROB WEBER

Roger Casalengo says the right diet, weight lifting and aerobics can produce a better man.

He should know. Last year he won the Kappa Sigma fraternity's "Greek God" contest, and Thursday night he won another title: "The Hunk of the Hill."

Casalengo, a Washington senior, was chosen over 12 other candidates in the Hunk of the Hill Male Review, an Alpha Delta Pi sorority event held in Garrett Ballroom.

"I didn't think I would get it," Casalengo said. "I was elated."

For police, little money means many hours

By SAM BLACK

A lack of money means a lack of staff.

And for Public Safety, that means plenty of overtime hours for its 20 officers — as many as 600 in one year in officer Jim Schaeffer's case.

Partly because sports and other special events demand extra manpower that Public Safety cannot provide, Western's officers work more overtime hours than officers with other police agencies in the state, according to Public Safety director Paul Bunch.

Bunch said three more patrol officers, one dispatcher and one crime prevention officer would return the manpower Public Safety lost because of budget cuts in 1981. Those cuts also reduced the number of student workers from 25 to 10. Bunch said he needs five more student workers.

"The university is aware, and it's not that they haven't been helpful, but there are other departments that need personnel as well," Bunch said.

Public Safety "certainly can make a very reasonable case for more support," said executive vice president Paul Cook.

But Cook — who receives budget requests from university departments — said more money for Public Safety would be at other departments' expense. It's a matter of addressing needs in priority order, he said, and it's premature to suggest those priorities for the upcoming budget.

Bunch said the five personnel and five student workers would cost Western about $78,980 per year.

While Public Safety's staff has dwindled, other police agencies have managed to maintain their numbers.

Jackie Strode, a state police public relations officer, said the state force is down from 950 troopers to 913 because of Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's Window Retirement program.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

Here are some of the events going on at Western during Black History Month.

■ The Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority and National Association for the Advancement of Colored People are hosting a membership drive in the university center today and tomorrow.

■ A Spike Lee Film Festival will be held in Page Hall Auditorium at 6 p.m. tomorrow.

■ Central Hall is showcasing famous black Americans at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

■ Singer Jane Powell will perform in Center Theatre at 8 p.m. Monday.

■ An All Male Revue Strip Show, sponsored by Delta Sigma Theta sorority, will be held 7 p.m. Feb. 13 in West Hall Cellar.

■ A Crimson and Cream Ball, sponsored by Delta Sigma Theta and Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity, will be held in Garrett Ballroom at 9 p.m. Feb. 14.

■ Singing group Regency performs at 7 p.m. in the university center on Feb. 19.

■ A Black Student Alliance Talk Show will be at 7 p.m. Feb. 20 in Garrett Auditorium.

■ A Christian Nightclub will be held Feb. 21 at 7 p.m. in the university center.

■ Richard Wright's Native Son will be shown at 6 p.m. Feb. 22 in Page Hall Auditorium.

■ Black Student Alliance is sponsoring After Five Affair at 9 p.m. Feb. 24 in Garrett Ballroom.

■ On Feb. 28, "Imitation of Life" will be shown at 6 p.m. in Tate Page Auditorium.

100 show to kick off activities

By ANYA LOCKERT

Posters reading "Don't Believe the Hype," "Black is Beautiful" and "It Takes Two Steps to Stay Even" decorated the lobby of the university center Thursday, as about 100 students gathered to launch Black History Month.

Chanting "stand up and shout — that's what Black History Month is all about," students clapped as an a cappella version of the spiritual "Mary Don't You Weep" played in the background.

Shelette Richardson, a Campbellsville graduate student, performed a dramatic monologue, "Slave to the Rhythm," in which she stressed that people can determine their fate if they are motivated.

"Make hard times your slave,

"The more we do as black students, the more people will turn out and the more we'll get done."

Marcus Sparks

and don't be a slave by nature," Richardson said. "We are black by nature and proud by choice."

Organizers of the rally — sponsored by Black Student Alliance — said they hoped the event would draw attention to other Black History Month events held through February.

BSA president Sharon Dennis said she wants to make the affair an annual event because of this year's success.

"The main purpose of the kick-off was to get people excited about the event and to know what upcoming events to expect," she said.

Marcus Sparks, BSA public relations head and a Louisville sophomore, said, "the more we do as black students, the more people will turn out and the more we'll get done."

Jennifer Mattox, a sophomore from Rocky Mountain, Va., said, "black students should participate so we can learn more about our heritage and what's going on around campus."

ALMANAC

Enrollment figures to be released today

Freida Eggleton, Western's registrar, would not release the spring enrollment figures earlier this week, but said they would be released today.

Western experienced a 4 percent jump in enrollment last fall from 14,121 in fall 1988 to 14,694 in fall 1989.

Retirement planning seminar this weekend

Western's Small Business Development Center will co-sponsor a seminar on Small Business Retirement on Feb. 13 in the university center, Room 226.

The seminar will explain the advantages and disadvantages of available types of retirement plans.

The seminar is free. To pre-register, see Sue Neagle, center staff assistant, in Grise Hall, Room 245, or call her at 745-2901.

Communication skills taught at workshop

Gaining and understanding self-assertiveness will be the focus of workshops being held by several clinical psychology graduate students at 2:10 p.m. tomorrow in Tate Page Hall.

The programs are open to students, faculty and the public, but those wishing to attend must first contact the psychology department. To take part, call Ann Edgren or Marsha Fay at 745-5374 or 782-2513, or Kacia Hall at 745-3159.

News nuggets

Thomas O. Wisely, associate economics professor, was appointed to the Kentucky Economic Roundtable by Gov. Wallace Wilkinson. State Finance Secretary L. Rogers Wells Jr. said the roundtable was expanded to get a wide range of expertise in the field of economics. The roundtable is an advisory panel that gathers and assesses information on state economic trends and advises the government on those trends.

Campusline

■ The Pre-Law Club will meet at 4 p.m. today in Grise Hall, Room 335.

■ Western's Broadcasting Association will sponsor Dan Katz, sports and news anchor from television station WFIE in Evansville, Ind., at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Academic Complex, Studio 2.

■ Western's Middle School Association will meet at 5 p.m. Monday in Page Hall Auditorium.

Forecast

The National Weather Service forecast calls for sunny and mild weather today with the high temperature in the mid 50s. Tomorrow will be partly cloudy with the highs in the mid 50s and lows in the 30s.

Setting it straight

A story in the Jan. 30 Herald said the Board of Student Body Presidents has no say in choosing the student representative to the Council on Higher Education. Amos Gott, Associated Student Government president, said he felt they have no power because the governor chooses the representative from the eight university nominees. But Norman Snider, council spokesman, said each student government has a degree of say because they are able to nominate candidates.

Bug on the run

Flu epidemic expected to peak soon

By ANGIE JONES

The flu virus that has contributed to the deaths of 15 people in Kentucky this January is predicted to hit Warren County in epidemic proportions soon.

Chuck Bunch, director of the Barren River District Health Department, said the 27 flu cases the department diagnosed last week isn't a high number for this time of year, but he expects that number to increase in the next couple of weeks.

"We're just seeing the beginning of an epidemic in this area," he said. "I expect the numbers to keep rising."

"Hopefully by next week they'll top out."

Flu is a contagious disease caused by a type of influenza virus. Some of the symptoms are muscle pains, diarrhea, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, a cough and fever.

According to Bunch, the flu isn't fatal. He said the deaths in Kentucky weren't caused by the virus but were a result of a secondary infection such as strep throat or pneumonia.

Kevin Charles, Student Health Service director, said about 200 or more students have complained during January of flu symptoms. About 45 of those patients were diagnosed as having the flu.

According to Charles, although a patient may have several flu symptoms, the deciding factor is a fever of 102 or higher.

He said for the past three weeks there has been a steady increase in the number of cases and he doesn't expect the outbreak to subside until warmer weather.

But Dr. Debra Sowell, a pediatrician at Graves-Gilbert Clinic in Bowling Green, said the number of flu patients has decreased over

Proper clothing, plenty of fluids can stop colds

By TRAVIS GREEN

George Leamon said that when he catches a cold he needs someone to do more than take care of him.

"I call my girlfriend or my parents," the Glasgow junior said. "Anything to get a little sympathy."

Although nobody wants to catch a cold, most people do at one time or another. However, some nurses say the virus can be avoided by following these tips:

■ Avoid close association with infected people. Contact is the most common way of catching a cold, said Emodean McClure, a nurse at the Student Health Service.

■ Drink lots of fluids. Keeping the body saturated helps fight off the virus.

■ Wear proper clothing. Going from heat to extreme cold lowers a person's resistance.

■ Wash your hands frequently. It helps keep the virus from infecting you. If you already have a cold, it helps keep you from infecting others.

■ Get flu shots. Although

Bessie Whitfield, the Student Health Service's head nurse, said the shot won't work on colds, it might help prevent catching the flu virus.

"It could possibly help, but it needs several weeks in the system to take effect, and chances are people have already been exposed to the virus," she said.

McClure said the Student Health Service is out of the shots, but private physicians and the Warren County Health Department have them.

College students are especially at risk of catching colds because of their lifestyle, said Susan Vickous, a registered nurse at Greenview Hospital.

"They usually don't eat right, don't get much sleep and are under a lot of stress," she said. "Stress is a common cause of colds."

After a student has caught a cold, McClure said, there are only the traditional remedies.

"Stay in bed, drink lots of fluids and take Tylenol or aspirin for aches and pains."

the past three weeks. She diagnosed about 50 patients for the flu three weeks ago, 30 patients two weeks ago and 20 patients last week.

"Based on the number of our patients, the outbreak seems to be on the down side," she said.

Sowell said most of her patients have had no treatment and had already contracted a secondary infection.

Bunch said there is no cure for the flu and recommended people with symptoms take non-aspirin products and get plenty of liquids and rest. Feverish children who take aspirin can get rheumatic fever, he said.

He said there is no prevention for the flu either but people can prevent a secondary infection by treating their ailments when they first occur.

Man charged with resisting arrest

Herald staff report

A Bowling Green man was arrested Thursday night after police said he failed to show student identification at Nite-class and hit an officer with a trash can lid.

Dewayne Maurice Sparks, 419 Thames Way, was arrested and charged with third-degree criminal trespassing, two counts of second-degree criminal trespassing, disorderly conduct, public intoxication, third-degree assault, wanton endangerment of a police officer and resisting arrest.

Public Safety officer Jim Schaeffer and Niteclass manager George Taylor Thompson asked Sparks, who is not a student, for student identification shortly before midnight at the club, according to a campus police report.

The report said Schaeffer fled and hid behind a dumpster at the north end of South Hall. As Schaeffer ran toward Central Hall looking for him, Sparks leaped from his hiding place and threw a trash can lid, hitting Schaeffer, the report said.

Police said Thompson arrived and tackled Sparks. Officers

Brian Ward and John Brock assisted.

The officers struggled with Sparks on the ground for five to 10 minutes in an attempt to handcuff him. Reports said the officers had to cuff each hand and then cuff the handcuffs together before being able to handcuff Sparks properly.

Sparks was treated for a sprained wrist at the Medical Center at Bowling Green and lodged in Warren County Jail. He was released on a $5,000 surety bond and is scheduled to appear in court Feb. 6.

Campus needs more lights for safety

Students that are uneasy about walking on campus at night are going to be enlightened, sort of.

Results from a survey conducted by the university sexual assault task force showed better campus lighting was one of the top requests of students.

Officials — including President Thomas Meredith, Public Safety director Paul Bunch and Associated Student Government president Amos Gott — took time out last Tuesday night to tour the walking paths on campus and judge where the problem areas are.

A problem they encountered was that many light bulbs were burned-out, making it difficult to judge the safety of some areas. Nevertheless, the group identified three locations on campus where more lighting is needed:

- The corner where East and North halls meet near Virginia Garrett Avenue.

- Between West Hall and the university center parking lot.

- Near the wheel chair ramp outside the Academic Complex leading to the university center lot.

The group was correct in its verdict on all three counts. But there are other areas that could use better lighting, or at least get a second look from the bunch:

- Along the walkway that leads from between Grise and East halls to Cravens Library.

- Between West and South halls and on the northwest side of South.

- Between Page Hall and the Academic Complex, along the walkway that runs parallel with Normal Drive.

- Along the walkway between Poland and Keen halls that leads to University Boulevard.

- Along the walkway that runs from the dorms at the bottom of the Hill to the university center.

- Along the diagonal walkway between the Academic Complex and the university center.

- Along the path between the heating plant and Gilbert Hall.

- In front of McLean and Bates-Runner halls.

- Between Potter and Van Meter halls.

Lights in those spots would make students more comfortable — and bring campus out of its dark ages.

Sweating library

I want to address the problem of the severe heat in the library. I find it very uncomfortable to spend a long time in the library because of the severe heat.

I have been unable to figure out the reason why the thermostats are set at such a high temperature. Many times I have entered the library and found the doors wide open because of the heat inside. This is a terrible waste of energy.

Turning down the temperature would make the library a more comfortable place to do research and study while conserving energy.

Osborne supporter

I would like to respond to the letter written by Jerry Howard on Jan. 23 concerning John Osborne's resignation. I have been a student at Western for four years and have had the privilege of working in the Housing office for the past two years. During this time, I have found Mr. Osborne always shows concern and empathy when dealing with students about housing issues.

Despite Osborne's diligent efforts to work with and understand Mr. Howard's perspective, Howard has the audacity to demand his resignation. Although Howard has the right to voice his opinion, his request in this case demonstrates an inability to deal with all aspects of the situation.

Lori Barton
senior from Goodlettsville, Tenn.

Untraditional racism

Does racism exist at Western? Evidently so. However, it doesn't fit the traditional mold of racism.

In the university center, a sign announces something to the effect of a new "black music revue." Signs announcing a party hosted by 4-Live Crew says, "it's a black thang." A sweatshirt I saw the other day said, "Black by popular demand."

It's great if a group is proud of their heritage and who they are. I have no qualms with that because I'm proud of who I am. But I know very well that if a white person or group substituted the word "white" in any of these given situations, the cries of racism would be earsplitting.

The point is this: why is one group allowed to advertise the fact that they're proud of who they are, while another group is accused of racism at the drop of a hat? What comes to mind is the story of a Nashville rock band who faced months of racism accusations and legal battles when one of its members said at a show, "Thank God for white bread and pass the mayonnaise." Come on, let's get real.

I'm not a racist, nor are the vast majority of white students. I realize, though, that many people will simply close their minds upon reading this and bestow this title upon me. The responsibility of 400 years of black oppression can't be put on our generation. It's not our fault. If true equality is what everyone wants, and I hope to God it is, then don't accuse us of racism just because we're proud of being who and what we are — white.

Jay Howell
Lexington junior

Glasgow campus to add library

By CHRIS POYNTER

Students at Western's Glasgow campus will no longer have to study in stairwells or wait for days for research materials.

Thanks to money raised by the Glasgow Business and Professional Women's Club, a library is scheduled to open on campus in August.

The library will be in a room across from the bookstore in the campus' main building, said James Heck, director of the Glasgow campus. The room is being used as a media presentation center for professors who want to show films and other visual media. "We will try to find another place to house the media presentation center," Heck said.

To raise money for the library, the women's club had soup dinners and accepted contributions from area businesses, said Golda Walbert, fundraising chairman.

"The students needed a place to research and obtain reading materials and study," said Walbert, who is a part-time professor at the campus. "I've seen them studying everywhere. The library will eliminate this problem."

Walbert also wanted to do something to help the many non-traditional students who attend school. By the time the non-traditional students get off work, Helm-Cravens library is closed, she said.

The library fund drive began March 11, 1988, and the $100,000 goal was reached Feb. 2, 1989, said Michael Binder, director of university libraries.

Of the more than $100,000 raised, $50,000 is being used immediately to buy books and periodicals. The rest will be placed in the Glasgow Library Resources Endowment Fund, and its interest will be used to buy materials, Binder said.

The university will provide money to maintain bookshelves, chairs, tables and other materials for the library, which will serve undergraduate students and the public.

Binder had no estimate on yearly costs for the library. He said the first year will be paid for with the money raised, and the university will support the library after that.

Before the library was established, students had to go to the Glasgow Public Library, the FAX service and a courier that runs twice a week from Bowling Green to Glasgow.

The Glasgow library will still have the courier service and FAX service to Helm-Cravens libraries.

The library will be managed by a full-time librarian, who will get help from student workers. Hours will be Monday through Thursday from 11:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday from 8 a.m. to noon and Sundays from 1-5 p.m.

said they would be willing to become involved in projects to help the environment.

Aaron Podolefsky, head of the sociology, anthropology and social work department, said he's very encouraged by these figures, which show that many young people have realized the urgency of the issues.

"Environmental problems are a lot more personal than they were five years ago," he said. "People see it all around them."

But Podolefsky is afraid the number isn't increasing fast enough. "If the number of concerned people grows by 2 percent a year, by the time it increases 20 percent it may be too late."

Michael Seidler, associate philosophy professor, said he hasn't noticed any increase in the number of socially conscious students at Western.

That's because there is a prevailing attitude in society that discourages young people from getting involved, said Seidler, faculty adviser of United Student Activists.

"Most students are still getting an education so they can be well-off," he said. "The whole message of this society is self-gratification rather than service."

Denise Landers, a Lawrenceburg freshman, said there is definitely pressure on college students to pursue financial security and forsake everything else.

"I tell people I'm either going into broadcasting or education and they say, 'Why do you want to do that? You can't make any money that way.'"

But Seidler said students don't have to fear failure, even if they work for things they believe in.

"I don't believe a well-rounded person who cares about the issues is not going to do well, even in financial circles," he said, adding that many successful businessmen were humanities majors.

He added that more young people must become politically active if tomorrow's problems are going to be solved, and he urged the media to do a better job in relating the issues to students' everyday lives.

But the biggest challenge to getting students involved is creating career opportunities that will let them help society, he said.

"Unless a career is officially built in, like environmental studies, then people figure they can't afford to do it (get involved)," he said, "and that includes some of the basic work in society — like saving the planet."

Grill takes cafeteria's late shift

Food Services compensates for new wages

Herald staff report

Because the university center grill uses fewer employees, its hours will be extended and the cafeteria's will be decreased beginning this week.

The cafeteria will close at 2 p.m. Monday through Friday for the rest of the semester, and grill hours will be extended from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays.

The cafeteria will be closed on weekends, but the grill will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday and 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Sunday.

Food Services director Louis Cook said there will be no cutback in the number of student employees because of the change, but there will be some reduction in the number of student hours worked.

In fact, there are still "plenty of opportunities" for students to get jobs at the grill on weekends, Cook said.

Cook cited the new higher minimum wage program beginning in April as a reason for the change. A cutback in student work hours keeps the budget from being overextended, Cook said.

Cook said Food Services is trying to be "as efficient as possible" by changing the dinner hours to the grill.

More campus police needed for safety

Under the program, troopers who have served 20 years may retire; 94 did last year. Strode said the Oct. 20 police academy graduation should return the number of troopers to 950.

City police is at full strength with 76 officers after adding four since 1988, said public relations officer Pat Thomas.

"I think this community deserves an equal amount of protection as the city or the state," Public Safety Lt. Richard Kirby said. "And I think in order to do that, we need to keep our manpower high."

Bunch added that "as student enrollment continues to increase there is more of a need for those officers."

But Kirby said "it's tough to recruit new applicants when we are competing with the local police agencies in respect to benefits and salaries."

Salary and benefits for a new officer cost Western $15,091 a year, while a city officer's pay starts at about $18,000. Bunch said Western has lost 11 officers to city police since 1974.

"The officers they have are grossly underpaid," criminology professor Edward Bohlander said. Bunch's "problem is turnover. It's hard for him to keep the officers they do have."

Bunch said a new contract was initiated in 1988 to try to curb officers' leaving Western and has done some good.

Under the contract the officer must work for Public Safety for three years or partially repay the university for the salary the officer earned during training.

During the six months of training, Western pays the trainee a total of $7,545. Under terms of the contract, the officer pays $6,000 for leaving during the first year after training, $4,000 for leaving the second year and $2,000 for leaving during the third.

Bunch said that since the contract's initiation, no officers have left the force.

Tops lose series to No.1 Seminoles

By L.B. KISTLER

Florida State lived up to its pre-season reputation as the top team in the country as it swept a three-game series against Western last weekend in Tallahassee.

"Everything we knew about them previously held true," Western coach Joel Murrie said.

All three games were close, the widest margin being Friday's 6-3 loss.

"The scores were close enough that in each of the three games, in the top of the ninth, when we were batting, we could have swung the bat one time and either tied or won the game," Murrie said.

Sunday's game was a good example.

The Toppers led 4-3 at the top of the seventh inning. But the Seminoles came back in the bottom of the inning to score three runs and take the lead. Florida State kept the Toppers from scoring again and booked a 6-4 win.

Four members of the Toppers' pitching staff saw action during Sunday's game. Junior reliever Neil Corley took the loss as he gave up two runs on three hits in less than an inning.

The Toppers' offense got a boost in Saturday's game on a two-run home run by junior left fielder Mario Baker.

Florida State jumped out to a 5-0 lead on Western pitchers Jason Crandall and Keith Hargis.

Western narrowed the Seminoles' lead to 5-4 at the top of the seventh inning. The Seminoles then scored their final run in the bottom of the seventh to win the game 6-4.

Crandall was the losing pitcher in his first game for the Toppers.

In Friday's game, Florida State jumped out to a 5-1 lead in the fourth inning. But the Tops came back in the top of the fifth to score two runs to make it 5-3. The Seminoles scored again in the

Last-second shot falls short

By BUDDY SHACKLETTE

Senior guard Roland Shelton has been there many times before—in a situation to win the game with a last-second shot.

He was there again Saturday night against South Florida.

With nine seconds left and Western down by one, Shelton took the inbound pass, weaved through 80 feet of traffic and launched a 14-foot jumper.

But the shot fell short as the Bulls slipped away with a 59-58 win at Diddle Arena in front of 5,000 fans.

"We wanted to make them burn some time coming down, on the shot and get the rebound," South Florida coach Bobby Pascual said. "Thank goodness, that's exactly what happened."

With 50 seconds left, Western's Jerry Anderson, who sat out the first half for missing a team meeting, hit a 14-foot jumper to put Western up 58-57, but South Florida's Bobby Russell nailed a 17-foot jumper with 10 seconds left to give the visitors the one-point margin and sole possession of second place in the Sun Belt Conference.

"It was a heart-breaking loss," Western coach Murray Arnold said. "We have won a lot of games like this down the wire. We may have given ourselves the best chance in one of these close-ending games to win of all of them that we've won, but we didn't win."

South Florida (14-6, 6-2) hit 52 percent from the field in the second half and connected on 23 of 46 shots overall.

Marvin Taylor led the Bulls with 16 points and Hakim Shahid had 11 points and 12

Westmoreland leads Western to victory

By JOHN MARTIN

Last night's game against Indiana State was a happy homecoming for Western's Renee Westmoreland.

The freshman guard, last season's high school player of the year in Indiana, netted a game- and career-high 21 points to lead the Lady Tops to a 70-49 whitewashing of Indiana State in Terre Haute.

Western improved to 10-9 while picking up its second victory away from Bowling Green this season. The Lady Sycamores dropped to 7-11.

"It was really gratifying to see us put together a good basketball game from start to finish," Western coach Paul Sanderford said. "Renee Westmoreland had a super ballgame."

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Westmoreland said having family and friends at the game gave her an extra dose of enthusiasm.

"I've been in a shooting slump, maybe being back in Indiana was what snapped me out of it," she

Kathy Teichert

Teichert started career as one of the boys

By DONNA DORRIS

Golf is an equal opportunity sport, with women being able to compete with and sometimes outdistance men.

Just ask Kathy Teichert.

Teichert, in her fourth year as Western's women's golf coach, started her golf career as the only woman on her high school's golf team in St. Johns, Mich.

Because St. Johns didn't have a women's team, Teichert played with the men and by their rules.

"These guys would be rubbing their hands together saying, 'Great, I'm playing against a girl,'" Teichert said. "Then I would either blow them away or it was a pretty even match."

Teichert was the captain of the team her senior year and estimates she lost six matches in her four-year high school career.

Teichert was All-State her senior year, one of only five girls picked, and was an All-Conference selection from the men's team, the first girl ever picked for that honor.

Teichert played collegiate golf at Michigan State, this time on the women's team, and set a school record for a 1-under par 70 in a tournament.

"That's a record that will probably stand for a while," she said.

Teichert came to Western right out of college on an internship in recreation and became manager and assistant coach for the women's golf team in the spring of 1986.

She took over in the fall of 1985 when Coach Nancy Quarcolino left Western to become the golf pro at the Hermitage Golf course in Nashville.

Teichert said the women's golf program at Western has seen positive changes in her five years.

"When I came here, I said if Western wants to be competitive, we're going to have to upgrade the schedule."

rebounds.

The Bulls reached their largest lead at the 8:59 mark in the second half at 45-36, but the Tops clawed back.

After trailing for 36 minutes, Western had its first lead at 3:49 when Anderson hit a 12-footer from the baseline to put the Tops up 52-50.

"I thought Western did everything that they could possibly do coming from behind like they did," Paschal said. "They did the right things at the end as far as handling things, and we were just very fortunate that a couple of our shots fell."

The Tops (10-12, 5-3) were paced by Shelton's 14 points and Anderson's 10 points, six rebounds and two steals in 20 minutes.

"I think that I had a couple of calls that could've went either way, and it's really frustrating when you're playing hard defense," said Western guard Anthony Palm, a junior from Gary, Ind. "Right now we're just going to go back to the drawing board and try to start all over, but I think we're all right, still in the hunt."

The Tops hit 11 of 22 shots in the first half but shot 44 percent in the second half and hit 24 of 51 shots overall.

"We're down a little now," Arnold said, "and from my point of view I feel just as good about our team and ours guys tonight as if it would have been a one-point win."

The Tops had a tough game against league-leading Alabama at Birmingham Thursday night at Diddle Arena, but the Blazers outmaneuvered the Tops and walked away with a 68-57 win.

"Two tough ballgames in three days," Arnold said. "We would have loved to had a split. If we could have won tonight I would have felt we were in great, great shape with our season and the way it was going."

Long pleased with team's performance in relays

By A. SCOTT LAJOIE

The Indiana Relays in Bloomington proved to be a valuable experience for the Toppers' track team, Coach Curtiss Long said.

The runners who were healthy enough to run, ran well, said Long, who only took a skeleton corps to the meet.

"I am very pleased with the way our runners are running," Long said. "Those who placed ran exceptionally well."

All-American freshman Sean Dollman's previous times qualified him to run in Saturday's 3000-meter finals.

He finished second with a time of eight minutes, 24 seconds in the 3000-meter run, but was out-kicked on the final lap by Cecil Frank of Ball State University. Frank finished in 8:23.02.

Western's women's mile record was broken this weekend by Mairead Looney. Her time of 4:52.73 is .7 seconds faster than the previous school record set by Gwen Van Rensburg.

Looney, a sophomore from Whittier, Calif., was edged out of second place in the mile by Kentucky's Donna Combs by a tenth of a second. The winner of the race, Valerie McGovern, also from Kentucky, broke the meet record with a 4:48.35.

Ineligible to run for the Toppers in this weekend's meet, senior Victor Nguneni, from Madadeni, South Africa, ran independently to keep himself in competition for the outdoor season.

He finished second in the 600-meter run with a time of 1:20.32 which is .02 seconds under the Indiana Relays' record.

Senior Mike Lutz also had a good meet.

On Friday, Lutz's 4:15.81 mile in the preliminaries was a personal best and qualified him to run in the finals on Saturday.

Teichert started career as one of the boys

That first year Teichert added two tournaments to the schedule, one in Oklahoma that the team flew to, helping Western gain national name recognition.

She also budgeted some money for new clothing for the team, replacing their outdated uniforms, helping them to "look the part" of a collegiate golf team.

Teichert said last season was the best ever at Western, and said this year is a down year, with six players making up the team.

"This year we're a very different team," she said. "We don't have the depth or experience. It's going to take a couple of years, but we're working really hard at it."

Teichert is looking forward to the spring season and to the future because she believes Western has a potential top-20 golf program.

The women's team opens the season Sunday in the North-South Challenge tournament in Jacksonville, Fla.

"I think we could, because we're in a very good climate zone," she said. "We can play year-round, where others can't."

"I think this year I'm going to have a great recruiting year. I think we've done an excellent job with the amount of scholarships we've had available, but if we could get two or three more, we'd really be competitive."

The team has two golf scholarships now, and Teichert has divided them among several players.

Though committed to her players, Teichert still plays competitively during the summer.

She missed qualifying for the 1989 Women's U.S. Open by one shot, and she said she did very well against year-round players.

However, Teichert said she would hesitate to quit coaching to play professionally.

"It is most gratifying to see a girl develop, not necessarily into a pro-type player, but a player who is intelligent enough to know her swing and be able to improve," Teichert said.

"When you go out and recruit these girls, they want to know if you'll be around for years. My commitment is to them."

sixth inning and shut down Western's attack for the rest of the game.

Junior pitcher Heath Haynes was tagged with the loss and the Seminoles' Gar Finnvald got the win.

"We had an opportunity to win not only any of the games, but all of the games," Murrie said.

The Toppers were perfect defensively over the weekend, as they didn't commit any errors. Florida State committed a total of six errors.

said, "I just felt something different."

Westmoreland wasn't the only Lady Topper with a hot hand last night. As a team, Western made 28 of 56 shots for an even 50 percent. They made four of six three-point shots and 10 of 14 free throws, and won the rebounding battle 38-32.

Meanwhile, Indiana State hit only 12 of 51 from the field for 23.5 percent. Nearly half of the Lady Sycamore points were recorded at the foul line, where they connected on 24 of 26 attempts.

"They like to play half-court basketball and I think our pressure really bothered them," Sanderford said. "We played really hard on the defensive end and that was the key to the game."

Westmoreland paced four Lady Toppers in double figures. Michelle Clark notched 14 points, Kim Pehlke scored 13 and Tandra Green added 11.

Western will travel to Birmingham tomorrow night to take on Alabama-Birmingham in a crucial Sun Belt Conference showdown.

The Lady Tops are 2-1 in the conference and the Lady Blazers are 3-1.

"They're the most improved team in the Sun Belt," Sanderford said. "We'll have to handle the basketball well and get it to the right people at the right times to win."

"It's a must-win game," Westmoreland said.

Swimmers finish fifth in Saluki Invitational

By DONNIE SWINEY

Western's swim team had its "best meet of the year," according to Coach Bill Powell, this past weekend at the 22nd Annual Saluki Invitational in Carbondale, Ill.

Powell said he was proud of his team's effort, even though the Toppers (6-2) finished last in the five-team meet.

"We went in and did our best, and that's all you can ask for," Powell said. "We didn't fold and we didn't give up."

Unranked Kansas upset host and 13th-ranked Southern Illinois to win the tournament. Auburn finished third, followed by Ball State and Western.

Powell said nearly everyone on his team had a season-best time.

Senior Scott Drescher finished second in the 100-fly with a time of 51 seconds, placing him third on Western's all-time list in that event. He also finished 10th in the 200-fly.

Sophomore Marty Spees had three top-10 finishes. He placed sixth in the 100-backstroke, seventh in the 200-individual medley and 10th in the 200-backstroke.

Western will travel to Vanderbilt Thursday for an unscheduled exhibition meet. Their next scheduled meet is at Evansville, Ind., on Feb. 14.

Most of the seats in the Garrett Ballroom were occupied by women screaming at the tops of their lungs as Casalengo and the other contestants took the stage to compete in casual wear, swim wear and formal wear competitions.

Jeanne Smith, a Bowling Green sophomore, said she was glad to see a contest that appealed to a female crowd. "It was fun seeing the guys for a change."

Although the contest was open to men from any student group, each of the candidates was sponsored by a Greek organization. They were judged by a panel, consisting of two male and two female faculty members.

The judges "looked for smile, personality, physical appearance, poise and movement," said judge Nancy Priest, a communications and broadcasting instructor. "There was a lot of spirit (among candidates)."

In addition to the title of "Hunk of the Hill," Casalengo, who represented Sigma Kappa sorority as one of their big brothers, won two lunches at Andrew's Restaurant, a week at Loverslane Racquet and Sports Centre, a $15 credit at Econowash and 10 visits to Forever Tan.

Sgro won $10 credit at Nat's Outdoor Sports, $10 credit at Econowash and an appetizer at Mariah's Restaurant. Ashby received five dollars credit at Econowash and credit for three video rentals at Blockbuster Video.

Leslie Smith, a sophomore from Deland, Fla., and coordinator of the contest, said the event raised more than $1,000, which will be donated to the Ronald McDonald House.

Smith said the Ronald McDonald house is for the families of ill children that must stay in a city with a hospital that offers specialized treatment.

Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity won a penny voting contest held before the hunk contest. People were allowed to drop pennies in a cup with a candidate's name on it to show support. Smith said they contributed $96 to the donations for the Ronald McDonald House.

The AGRs also won a spirit award for enthusiasm during the contest.

With Casalengo's newest title comes some "razzing," he said. "My fraternity brothers ask me if I can fit my head through the door, or if I need two bottles of shampoo to wash my hair."

Man pleads guilty of fleeing accident scene

Herald staff report

A Bowling Green man pleaded guilty in Warren District Court yesterday to driving under the influence of alcohol and failure to perform duties at the scene of an auto accident after being apprehended Saturday by city and campus police.

Thearson Devane Carver, 1476 Old Louisville Road, was sentenced to 28 days in jail and was ordered to pay $367.50 for court costs and fines.

Carver drove away from a Center Street accident Thursday and eluded police until Saturday.

Carver is lodged in the Warren County Jail.
